Colon cleansing therapy bed

The metabolic wastes and harmful substances in human body are mainly discharged through four major excretory systems: large intestine, skin, respiratory tract and urinary tract. The dysfunction of any of these four excretory systems will certainly increase the burden of other systems, and over time will lead to dysfunction and disease of these systems, resulting in self-poisoning and damage to the health of the Body. Of the four major excretory systems, the large intestine is the most important and most easily overlooked one. Disorders of the large intestine are associated with many human diseases.

The large intestine is the lower part of the digestive tract, about 1.5 meters long. Food residues remain in the large intestine, where some of the water is absorbed by the mucous membranes of the large intestine. In addition to food scraps, faces include shed intestinal epithelial cells and a host of bacteria. Colon cleansing enhances your health and decrease the chance of illness by far, whilst immediately offering colon relieve.
